WHAT SUSTAINABLE INVESTING WILL LOOK LIKE OVER THE NEXT DECADE

As the world seeks solutions to unprecedented environmental, social and governance (ESG) problems, the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) outline an aspirational view of what the world could look like by 2030. For investors, the SDGs identify opportunities that contribute towards positive environmental and social outcomes, as well as highlight growth areas for capital providers. Our three primary themes of Climate, Health, and Empowerment complement our financial analysis to find sustainability-focused target companies, reflecting an investment framework that integrates ESG factors throughout our decision-making process.

At AllianceBernstein (AB), we believe that companies impact society in two main ways: through the products they sell and the services they render. These businesses should generate at least a quarter of their sales from an activity recognized by the SDGs, as well as zero revenue from any business that we believe inhibits these achievements. Our sustainable investment strategies are dedicated to help investors eager to advance social benefits and generate competitive risk-adjusted returns. We believe that a sustainable thematic framework can help us identify future trends that will shape the world, not just in the next few months, but over the next several decades.
